MAP as a portfolio system, allowing you to communicate with the program and keep track of your progress and achievements as you complete your undergraduate medical school journey.

You will use the MAP system to submit materials required to qualify for a competitive match for The PreHealth Advising Program. The Health Professional allows the PreHealth Advising Program to know what to communicate with you about your application.

Facilitating Communication:
- There is no PreHealth major or minor at Northeastern. Rather, you declare that you are PreHealth by setting up a MAP account.
- Make sure your "Year Entering Health Program" reflects the year you intend to start medical, veterinary, optometry, or pharmacy school. Make sure the "Health Field Code" reflects the profession you intend to enter. This is essential for communication!

Pre-Application Year:
- Keep track of your activities and experiences. At the end of each semester, take a little time to fill in what you have done this past school year. This is important to add to your resume, CV, personal statement, letters of recommendation, and to fill out your application.
- Download the Self-Assessment to review your progress and transfer what you need from it to your application. You still need to fulfill before you are ready to apply.

Application Year:
- Your completed Self-Assessment and your Letters of Recommendation will be submitted via MAP.
- The MAP portfolio allows you to gather everything that you will need for your application before the actual application becomes available. This facilitates applying early, which is essential!

Applying:
- The PreHealth Advising Program uses all the information that you have submitted via MAP when writing your letter of recommendation. PreHealth Advising will contact your recommender to inform them of your application as your letter statement will be submitted by them.
- The MAP portfolio allows you to gather all your information as you go. If you have been careful tracking your activities and experiences in MAP, it will help you when you go to fill out your professional school application.
